

THE GREEN BANDANA

A Fairy Tale of a Little Recycler

By Texas Disposal Systems

Once upon a time, in a city full of music and sunshine, there lived a curious little girl named Luna who wore a bright green bandana that sparkled when the light hit just right.

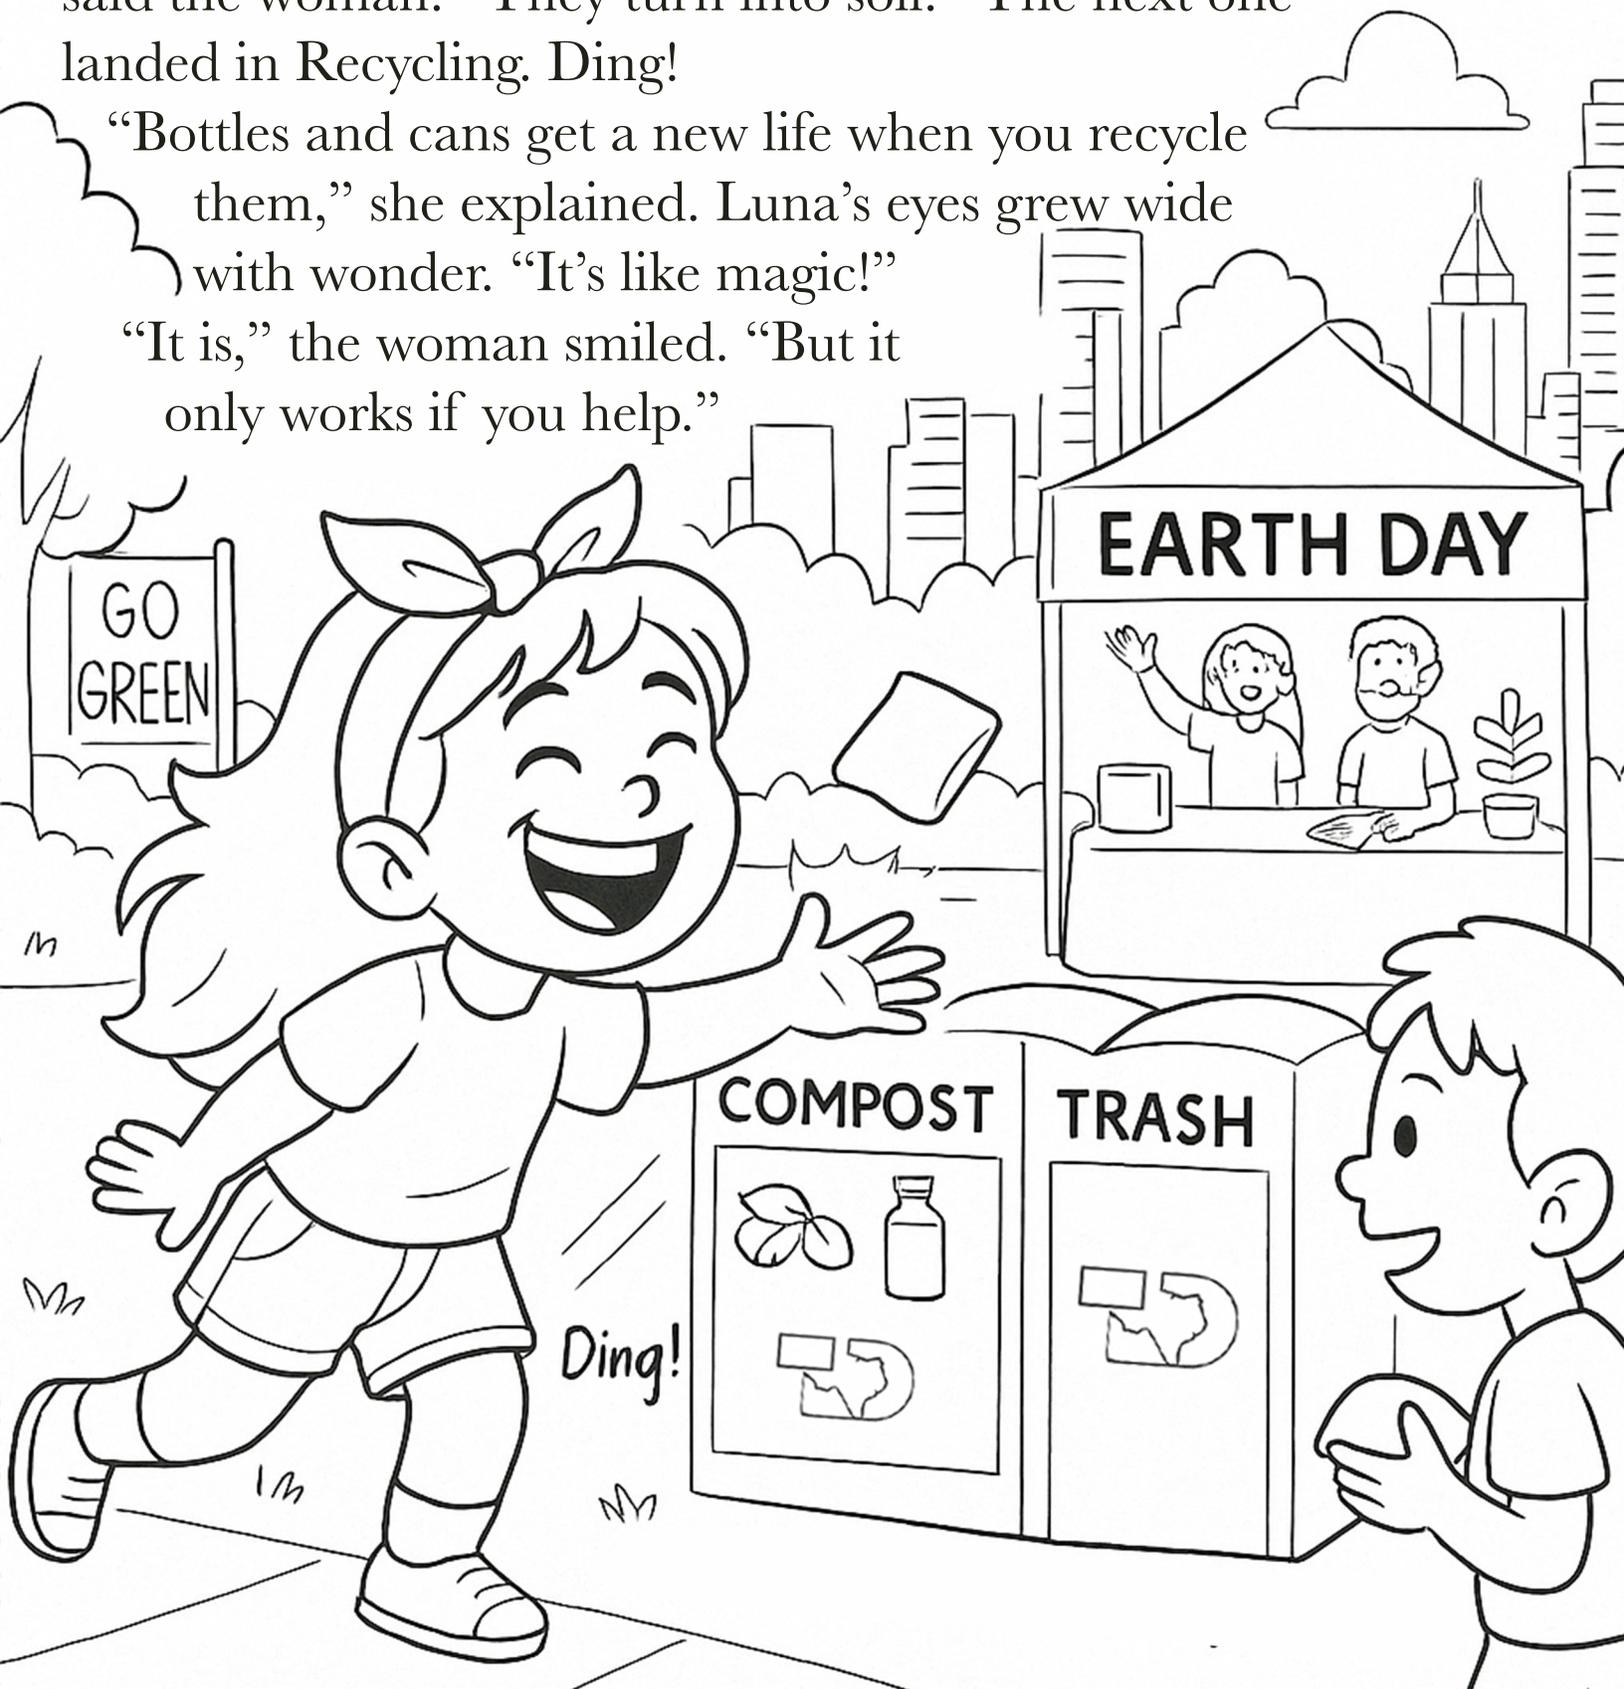

One weekend, she went to a big, beautiful stadium with her family. The walls were painted with tall green trees, and bins labeled Compost, Trash, and Recycling stood like friendly guardians all around. Luna saw a kind woman at a booth with a big smile and a tower of beanbags. "Would you like to play a game?" she asked.

“What’s it about?” Luna asked. “It’s called Sort It Right!” the woman said. “Every time you throw the beanbag into the right bin—compost, trash, or recycling—you learn a new sustainability secret.” Luna was intrigued. She tossed the first beanbag into the Compost bin. Ding! “Food scraps and paper napkins go here,” said the woman. “They turn into soil!” The next one landed in Recycling. Ding!

“Bottles and cans get a new life when you recycle them,” she explained. Luna’s eyes grew wide with wonder. “It’s like magic!”

“It is,” the woman smiled. “But it only works if you help.”

From that day on, Luna made it her mission to learn all about sorting waste, saving water, planting trees, and protecting the earth. Her green bandana became her cape, and she became known in her neighborhood as The Little Recycler.

Years passed, and Luna grew up. But she never took off her green bandana. She became a science teacher and sustainability expert, inspiring students with hands-on lessons about recycling, composting, and caring for the earth. Her classroom was filled with plants, reusable supplies, and posters about protecting the planet.

And every time a child tossed a beanbag and smiled just like she once did, Luna would wink and say, “You’re part of the magic now.” And so, the girl with the green bandana helped make the world a little greener, a little kinder, and a lot more magical.

THE END

TD
TEXAS DISPOSAL SYSTEMS

TEXAS DISPOSAL SYSTEMS

Written & Illustrated by Texas Disposal Systems.
© 2025 Texas Disposal Systems. All rights reserved.
Printed in the USA
TexasDisposal.com

SCAN FOR NEWS & INFO

